The NeuroSoma Axis

Seven places your body and mind report in, and what each one sounds like.

	ALIGNED	HEIGHTENED	NEEDING SUPPORT
I. Foundation Is there something underneath me?	Feels safe and settled Steady under pressure Deep, restorative sleep	Hypervigilance Fear of change Easy to startle	Feeling ungrounded or not present Chronic insecurity Heavy fatigue
II. Creativity Can I move, receive, and feel?	Emotions move and resolve Creative flow and play Fluid hips and pelvis	Emotional overwhelm Swept up in moods Hip flexor (psoas) tension	Numbness Feeling stuck or flat Stiff hips, low flexibility
III. Confidence Is this mine to carry or mine to witness?	Clear boundaries Decisive, reliable follow-through Steady, efficient digestion	Irritability Need to control or be right Stomach knots, indigestion	Helplessness Easily overridden by others Chronic fatigue
IV. Compassion Can I stay connected without losing myself?	Empathy without absorbing Secure, warm connection Open chest and shoulders	People-pleasing, over-giving Absorbing others' pain Chest tightness	Social withdrawal Loneliness Shallow breathing
V. Expression Can what is true inside come out?	Speaks clearly and truthfully Listens fully Relaxed jaw, tongue, and neck	Interrupting, talking over others Over-explaining as a defense Tight throat	Fear of speaking up Difficulty putting feelings into words Weak or small voice
VI. Clarity Am I seeing what is here or what I predict?	Sees situations as they are Focused attention Relaxed eyes and brow	Rumination, looping thoughts Scattered attention Eye strain	Low focus and concentration Seeing only one right way Tired, heavy eyes
VII. Purpose Is the system organized as one thing?	Clear sense of purpose Sees the bigger picture Thinking stays online under pressure	Overanalyzing Living in the head Racing mind at night	Loss of meaning Cynicism Brain fog

An educational framework to help you notice what your system is telling you. It is not a diagnostic or medical tool.
